GSH Adds Affordable Housing

Good Shepherd Housing and Family Services hosted a ribbon-cutting ceremony Thursday celebrating the acquisition of its 60th unit preserving affordable housing in Fairfax County. Its newest unit is a one-bedroom apartment in the Colchester Towne complex on Audubon Avenue for a senior citizen aged 62 or older, or an individual with a disability. GSHFS president and CEO David Levine noted that Good Shepherd Housing owns 27 of the 200 units in the apartment complex and has a goal of having 200 affordable housing units in its portfolio by the year 2015. Both state Sen. Scott Surovell (D-36th) and Del. Paul Krizek (D-44th) commended Good Shepherd Housing for its work in preserving affordable housing for low-income working residents of the county.

Alexis Feeny Talman, chairman of the GSH board of directors, cuts the ribbon for the organization's newest acquisition. Paul Krizek and state Sen. Scott Surovell. In photo right, the kitchen in the apartment.
